Evening course at Burnaby campus

Class time: Lecture: Wednesday 18:30 - 21:20

Lab: Monday 8:30 - 10:20 or Friday 8:30 - 10:20

Discussion Topics: Course description:

Zooarchaeology is concerned with the description and analysis of animal remains from archaeological sites. This course covers two major aspects of zooarchaeology: development of practical skills in the identification of the vertebrate skeleton; and understanding the method and theory relevant to the interpretation of assemblages of animal remains. Labs will deal with identification. Lectures and associated readings will cover interpretation.
