FONDS DESCRIPTION

Peter Trower, 1930-

Peter Trower fonds. -- 1929-2006.

4 m textual records and other material

Biographical History:

Peter Trower was born on August 25, 1930, in St. Leonard's-on-Sea in England, and was educated at Dragon School, Oxford. His father, Stephen Trower, an air survey pilot, died as a result of a plane crash in 1936. In July 1940, Trower's mother Mary brought himself and his brother to Canada aboard an evacuee ship, and they settled in Vancouver, B.C. Not long after their arrival, his mother married mill superintendent Trygg Iversen and the family moved to Port Mellon, B.C. Following Iversen's death in 1944, the family subsequently lived in Gibsons and Vancouver. In 1948 Trower left school; he began working at his first logging camp in 1949, and he worked off and on in logging camps along the B.C. coast for the next twenty-two years. Between logging jobs Trower also worked as a smelter worker in Kitimat, a surveyor, pulp-mill hand, shakecutter and baker.

While in the logging camps, Trower pursued cartooning and writing interests in his spare time. Aspiring to become a professional cartoonist, he enrolled in the Vancouver School of Art in 1958. However, prior to completing the program, Trower was influenced to pursue writing professionally. He published his first collection of poetry, Moving Through the Mystery, with Talonbooks in 1969. In 1971, he stopped logging and became the Associate Editor of Raincoast Chronicles. During this period Trower began writing and publishing prose and contributed articles and short stories to various publications, including the Coast News and Vancouver Magazine. Much of Trower's writing has been influenced by his years spent in logging camps. His experiences as a logger and poet were explored in the 1976 CBC documentary 'Between the Sky and the Splinters', titled after his 1974 book of poetry of the same name. In 1993, he published his first novel, Grogan's Café, and his first cd, Sidewalks and Sidehills was released in 2003. Trower also collaborated on several projects with his partner Yvonne Klan, who passed away in 2004.

Trower has received several awards and honours during his career, including: Gillian Lowndes Award (1997), BC2000 Book Award (2000), the first annual Peter Trower Alternative Poetry Award (2000), Terasen Lifetime Achievement Award for an Outstanding Literary Career in British Columbia (2002), and the Canadian Authors Association Jack Chalmers Poetry Award (2005).

Trower lives in Gibsons, British Columbia.

Source of title note: Title based on contents of series

Arrangement note: Series is arranged chronologically. The majority of photographs were listed and assigned numbers in ink on the verso by Professor Geoff Madoc-Jones prior to transfer in 2002. These numbers have been maintained; however, the numbers appear out of sequence in the finding aid, as they do not correspond to the chronological arrangement created by the Archivist for ease of access. Physically, the photographs are arranged in numerical order.

General note: The majority of photographs were assigned titles by Trower prior to their acquisition by Simon Fraser University. Additional notes made by Trower on post-it notes attached to the photographs have been included in the file list as notes. Where Trower referred to himself as "Trower" in the title his full name has been included.
